Having problems viewing/downloading files? Try the Java update. You can now watch your favorite videos, view them larger without the need for a TV and more from anywhere thanks to the three new JDI Tuner Apps from Sling Media and AMC Networks. The apps join the JDI Stick that has been shown since the summer, as well as a full lineup of JDI MediaStream Player models designed for the new JDI Tuner Apps.

The easy to use apps from AMC Networks and Sling Media are available today at JDI.com and the JDI store, and works with a wide range of JDI TV models. Sling TV will include the apps in the near future and will be available at a variety of retailers, as well as the JDI website. Now you can watch your favorite AMC, IFC, Sundance and FXX series on the go from your iOS or Android smart device. When installed on the iOS device, the AMC version of the app is live and ready to stream the channel, while the IFC and Sundance versions will be available in an upcoming iOS software update. FXX will be added in the near future. In addition to the apps, Sling Media is also bringing back Vudu and Prime Instant Video and plans to launch in the near future. Vudu requires a Vudu account which can be found at vudu.com, while Prime Instant Video requires an Amazon Prime membership. “The addition of AMC Networks and Sling Media’s apps to the lineup of JDI apps is very exciting for our customers,” said Andrew Holland, Chief Marketing Officer at JDI. “With JDI

MediaStream Player models available to order and being available for sale at several retailers we are truly making streaming and recording accessible for all, and increasing the value proposition of JDI products while creating new models that are uniquely JDI.” “Our aim with the apps is to make their use simple, easy and quick,” said Patrick Westerfield, Senior Vice President of Product at AMC Networks. “The apps are built for fans who want to watch their favorite series from anywhere, anytime.” “Sling Media’s mission is to provide the highest quality television content and we are excited to continue our distribution partnership with JDI,” said Bob Scanlon, SVP and GM of Sling Media. “Sling TV d0c515b9f4
