api.makeRequest(method, path, headers=headers, data=json.dumps({data: data}), files={}) This should be done in order to serialize all the data, therefore we should manually serialize request.full_path and serialize data It should be something like this: request = api.makeRequest(method, path, headers=headers, data=json.dumps({'full_path': serialize(request.full_path), data: data}), files={}) I hope this might save you some time on debugging the rest of the neurophysiological evidence that reward is mediated by networks of neurons with special connections to cortical and subcortical regions implicated in higher cognitive functions and emotional reactions. We present a neural network model of reward that describes how rewards from primary sensory and associative regions can act to modulate the activity of cortical and subcortical areas associated with a wide range of higher cognitive functions, including those of executive control. Our results suggest that the reward system is a critical determinant of the ability to process complex information and respond appropriately to the environment and that the underlying brain networks may be targets for the development of interventions in attention deficit and hyperactivity disorder.
